

Ubuntu

I am because we are

Ubuntu is a traditional African philosophy that emphasizes interconnectedness, communalism, and the shared humanity of all people. It suggests that "I am because we are," highlighting the interconnectedness of individuals within a community. The concept, originating in the Bantu languages, emphasizes the importance of mutual respect, empathy, and compassion within a community.

In essence, Ubuntu is a way of life that emphasizes interconnectedness, communal responsibility, and the inherent worth of every individual within a community. It's a powerful philosophy that encourages us to see ourselves as part of a larger whole and to treat others with compassion and respect.

Ubuntu Philosophy

- Interconnectedness:

Ubuntu rejects individualism and emphasizes the idea that an individual's identity is inherently tied to their community and relationships.

- Communalism:

It promotes a collectivist approach where shared values and the well-being of the community are prioritized over individual interests.

- Shared Humanity:

Ubuntu suggests that our humanity is defined by the humanity of others, and we are only truly human when we recognize and respect the humanity of everyone.

- Compassion and Empathy:

The philosophy emphasizes compassion, respect, and mutual support within a community.

- Solidarity and Shared Responsibility:

Ubuntu encourages a spirit of solidarity and shared responsibility within a community, where individuals are expected to support one another.

UBUNTU

UBUNTU is a very nice story from Africa...
The motivation behind the Ubuntu culture in Africa...
An Anthropologist proposed a game to the African tribal children...

He placed a basket of sweets near a tree
And made the children stand 100 meters away.
Then announced that whoever reaches first would get all the sweets in the basket.
When he said 'ready steady go!'...

Do you know what these children did?
They all held each other's hands, ran together towards the tree, divided the sweets equally among themselves, ate the sweets and enjoyed it.
When the Anthropologist asked them why
they did so,
They answered... "Ubuntu."

Which meant -
'How can one be happy when the others are sad?'

Ubuntu in their language means -

"I am because we are"
A strong message for all generations.

Let all of us always have this attitude and spread happiness wherever we go.

Let's have a "Ubuntu" Life...

I AM BECAUSE WE ARE
